

Wainscott Weekly

February 17, 2017

This week was a whirlwind of fun. We had so many fun things going on that it almost didn't seem as though we were in school. After having the tail end of last week off due to snow we started this week with our normal routine. During the week in place of reading I helped the children practice researching. They had to choose a president from the past or present and find information pertaining to that president's life. They loved the activity. It was so amazing to see how well they worked on their projects. They all came out terrific. On Tuesday we celebrated Valentine's Day. Aside for the passing of the valentine cards we also worked on various projects with the children. The fun and excitement did not stop there, on Wednesday we celebrated our 100th day of school. Again we worked with the K-1 to tackle some fun learning centers. We finished our week off with a nice visit to the East Hampton library. If you aren't going away be sure to stop down to the library to see all the fun programs they offer during the break and throughout the year. I hope you all have a happy and healthy February break; we will see you soon!

It has been a fabulous week of learning and fun. On Tuesday we celebrated Valentine's Day. We read a fun Valentine's Day book and wrote stories about friends and family. We created our own special monsters to celebrate the day of friendship. We sorted and graphed hearts. We decorated bags and we had fun delivering special treats and notes to our friends. On Wednesday we celebrated our 100th day of school. We decorated hats, counted and grouped fruit loops in tens to make a hundred and created 100 day necklaces. The students had a great time. Our show 'n' tell time is going great but please remember to have your child practice what they will share with the class. Also have it be meaningful, no toys please. In Social studies we discussed Presidents Day and how hard it is to be president. The children wrote about what they would do if they were president. They are hanging in the hallway entrance so if you get a chance take a peek.

Have a wonderful winter break!
