September 9, 2016

WELCOME TO KINDERGARTEN AND FIRST GRADE! We have had an amazing first week of school. It was so wonderful to see many old friends and meet our new ones. We did many fun activities and crafts to learn more about each other. They all did a fabulous job on their boxes and we learned so much about their individual personalities. Next week will be our first full week of learning. We will be administering benchmarks to place your child appropriately to meet their individual potentials. I will be sending homework packets on Monday that will be due back on Friday. First Graders and Kindergarteners will do all pages. The First Graders will do Monday's homework on Monday and Tuesday's on Tuesday from each page. Please join us for our Open House on Tuesday, September 13, 2016 where we will go over policies and procedures for our class.

Have a wonderful weekend!

I am so excited for the new upcoming year. It was so happy to see all of our familiar faces and even some new ones to start the 2016-2017 school year. The children had so much fun getting to share their summer experiences while learning the new additions to our classroom. We welcomed a new teacher assistant, Ms. Nunez to help with the daily activities and she has fit in nicely. This week we focused on getting back into routines. The students will continue to get more practice next week as we start to get into our reading and math groups. I will work closely with all of them to develop their skills academically as well as practicing responsibility and ownership for behavior and work habits. I also sent home a letter pertaining to class dojo that will help you see the behavior monitoring of your child while keeping the line of communication open between you and me. I hope to see all of you next Tuesday night for open house where I can give a better description of the daily school day. Have a wonderful weekend.
